Group plans to lobby against tuition increase

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

With a proposed 5 percent to 15 percent increase in the cost of Illinois universities tuition to be recommended Thursday by Gov. James Thompson, a student group has been formed to lobby state and national legislatures concerning the rising costs of higher education.

The SIU-C chapter was formed last semester as one of eight members of the Illinois Student Association.

The group became part of the State Student Association's committee researching academic issues, increases in tuition and loans, and the decrease in federal money allocated for students.

"Grant awards have decreased 30 to 40 percent while loans have increased 30 to 40 percent," said Nikki Glasser, director of the ISA group on campus which met Wednesday.

"They're (students) coming out of school with debts of $30,000."

The ISA's main "mission," Glasser said, is to fulfill a leadership role on the state and national level. The group has a combined task of collecting data and statistics pertaining to issues of higher education.

The ISA then presents its findings by lobbying the legislative bodies in Springfield and Washington, D.C.

"We are working on the issues of higher education, on budget cuts and the costs of rising tuition," said Tony Appleman, ISA's public relations chairman. "Not just for students now, but for the high school graduates" who will be entering college in the fall.

OPEC's oil prices will drop

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A divided OPEC agreed Wednesday to lower some of its prices by as much as $1.41 a barrel, a move that followed the lead of its competitors and marked only the second round of cuts in the cartel's 25-year history.

Analysts said consumers, who have enjoyed savings from earlier price cuts by such OPEC competitors as Britain, Norway, Canada and U.S. oil companies, should not expect additional savings at the gas pump soon. But they said they expected prices to continue to drift lower.

The turbulent three-day special meeting ended with a new split in the ranks of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, as four of the cartel's 13 members rejected the deal and said they would go their own way on prices. Algeria, Iran and Libya, which had resisted cuts in OPEC's high-priced oils, dissented from the decision, while Gabon abstained.

Support of social services urged

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

The City Council received recommendations for the future of Carbondale's social services in a report from the Community Development Department.

Recommendations included setting aside 35 percent of the city's general revenue sharing for social services as well as taking a greater role in the operation of the Eurma C. Hayes Center.

City Manager Bill Dixon told the council that the 35 percent figure is not a binding amount, but is subject to change. The amount of money allocated for social services would be evaluated for each city budget.

Dixon said that the city's primary services, such as fire, police and water, should not be jeopardized by funding for social services.

Councilman Archie Jones said the 35 percent level is an amount that the city council can "hang their hats on" when making decisions on the amount of money to spend on social service programs.

The council agreed with a recommendation that city officials should recognize that the Hayes Center is not "just another office building."

The report stated that the council should get ready to take on the "extraordinary maintenance and security costs" of the center.

Donald Monty, community development director, said that the rent the city charges to agencies that use the Hayes Center should not be a hardship to the agencies.

The report indicated that city officials should consider covering the entire rent of the tenants.

Another recommendation called for restrictions on the center's child care program, pertaining to children living outside the city limits.

Monty said the city would still allow children in the program from outside the city, but their parents will have to pay, rather than being subsidized by the city.

Council members, however, had reservations about reduced funding for the Attucks Youth Program. The report states that the city's funding for the youth program should be reduced and offset by funding from the Carbondale school districts and the Carbondale Park District.

Councilman Neil Dillard said partial funding of the youth program by the school district may be difficult because the school board does not always know how much money they will receive from the legislature in Springfield.

"It may be asking them more than they can handle," he said.

The report recommended that the health clinic at the Hayes Center be closed if it cannot be self-supporting.

Students to receive refunds of delayed grants

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

Refunds for students whose financial aid exceeded their debts to SIU-C will be processed next week, Robert Brewer, assistant bursar, said Wednesday.

Brewer said that under University policy any extra money students receive from Pell, Illinois State Scholarship Commission or other grant programs is held until at the third week of classes.

This is done to ensure that students given grant money are still in school after the date for withdrawing and still being eligible for tuition refunds has passed, Brewer said.

"It's something that's not just done out of convenience," he said. "It's done out of necessity."

Under the grant programs guidelines, students are not eligible for aid if they withdraw from school. Brewer said that if refunds were given to students before the last day to withdraw, they could leave school with the money to which they aren't entitled.

If a student does quit school after receiving a grant refund Brewer said, the University can only deduct the amount of the aid from the student's account. If the same student wanted to apply for classes at SIU-C again, he or she would have to pay back the grant.

Gus Bode

Gus says the University should send the interest with the refunds.

U.S. posts record deficit for foreign trade in 1984

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States posted its worst trading year in history in 1984 — a $123.3 billion deficit that nearly doubled the old record, the government reported Wednesday. Both the Reagan administration and private economists predicted the trade deficit will grow even larger this year. The growing deficits have been blamed primarily on the strength of the U.S. dollar, which since the fall of 1980 has surged upward by more than 40 percent against major currencies.

Farm reps warn Congress of a 'rural storm'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives from the nation's agricultural heartland warned Congress on Wednesday that there is "a gathering rural storm" over the crisis in farm financing that threatens upheaval in America's food production and banking systems. The message, brought to Congress for the first time since it convened this month, was that farmers saddled by heavy debt are increasingly unable to pay it off because of declining values of their land and crops.

Congressmen introduce three tax-relief plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agreeing that Americans need still-lower tax rates and that President Reagan's solid support is necessary, members of Congress on Wednesday introduced three plans to make sweeping changes in the federal income tax. The bills share one major goal: all three would reduce individual tax rates, continuing the three-stage cut that was enacted at Reagan's insistence in 1981.

Personal income increased in third quarter

By The Associated Press
Americans' personal income rose in all 50 states during last year's third quarter, with residents of Georgia, Alaska and Florida enjoying the biggest gains, the Commerce Department said this week. Meanwhile, construction contractors and building-equipment distributors said they are confident of more work and higher profits in 1985, according to a survey conducted by CIT Corp. The gain, while considered healthy, was down from advances of 2.5 percent in the second quarter.

Supreme Court judge asks lawyers to help pay off debt

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — State Supreme Court Justice Ben Miller is asking lawyers, including some who may argue cases before him, to help pay off his campaign debt, according to a published report Wednesday. In an interview published in the Bloomington Pantagraph, Miller said he had done nothing improper or out of the ordinary. However, a spokesman for the Illinois State Bar Association said it's not clear whether lawyers' rules of conduct allow them to make such contributions for a sitting judge.

Caterpillar cuts production at Midwest plants

PEORIA (AP) — As many as 1,400 workers could lose their jobs over a two- to three-year period after Caterpillar Tractor Co., fulfilling intentions unveiled last year, announced Wednesday it will trim production at two plants in Illinois and Iowa. The world's largest maker of heavy-construction machinery, plagued by losses of nearly $1 billion over the past three years, said it told workers Tuesday at its Mapleton and Davenport, Iowa facilities of its decision to "downsize" operations.

State hopes to get Chrysler plant near Peoria

PEORIA (AP) — While scores of Illinois towns scramble to lure GM's new Saturn plant, the state hopes to entice another automaker, Chrysler Corp., into putting a plant with 2,500 jobs into an unfinished Caterpillar Tractor Co. warehouse near Peoria, officials said Wednesday. The state Commerce Department has approached Chrysler about buying Caterpillar's parts warehouse at Morton, about seven miles east of Peoria.

Judge suspended for drinking, insulting girl

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — A Cook County judge accused of drinking on the job and making a teen-age girl cry by asking about her sex life during a court hearing has been suspended for one month without pay, it was announced Wednesday. Associate Judge Francis P. Butler of Palos Park was ordered off the bench for one month starting March 1 by the Illinois Courts Commission, the disciplinary arm of the state's court system.

Pledge's shift from dorms could cost Greeks $400

By Karen Wiltberger
Staff Writer

Fraternity and sorority members living in the residence halls have until Friday to check out their bags and move to Greek Row.

The move is free for greek houses without the minimum number of residents needed to pay the rent, Samuel Rinella, director of University Housing, said Wednesday.

But Greek Row members say the majority of houses have their quota of 34 residents this semester. Rinella said those houses that want to move members over would have to pay a penalty of about $400 for each member who breaks a university housing contract.

Rinella said the penalty covers the cost of a room for a semester and for room and board for the time the member lived in the dorms this semester.

"The University is trying to help them (Greek Row houses) maintain a level so they don't fall behind in payments," he said.

Greek Row, located near the Lesar Law building, is composed of four fraternity and three sorority houses leased by the University.

Rinella said the University is allowing students to move to the on-campus fraternities and sororities this semester because those houses are leased by the University. Students are not allowed to move to the 11 off-campus houses.

Students may move from the dorms to Greek houses without a penalty twice during fall semester — before the first day of classes and finals week. The number of people allowed to leave the dorms at that time is determined by the number of students oversigned to the rooms, usually 80-100 students each fall.

"This time we allowed them to move until Friday, February 1st," Rinella said. The later date was set to help fraternities and sororities that may have lost students at the end of the semester, he said.

It is helping one fraternity, Tau Kappa Epsilon, where the number of residents dropped to 22 this semester. Many of the members changed schools or graduated in December, rush chairman Felix Tello said.

Tello expects the fraternity to match the quota and maybe add a few more members to the house by the end of the week. "We're in the process of moving people in right now," he said.

At least one fraternity is moving more members to the house this semester despite the penalty. Delta Chi member Terry Reisner said his fraternity will have admitted six members to the 38-member house by Friday.

It's good for the fraternity to take in more students to make the fraternity close-knit, said Reisner, a former resident of Neely Hall. "When I come back here in 10 years, I'll show them my fraternity. That's where I live, not the dorms."

Formal rush registration for Greek Row fraternities was held last Friday in the Student Center. The sororities' two-day formal rush begins Feb. 3.

CUB protests proposed utility rate increase

By Lisa Eisenhauser
Staff Writer

Illinois Power customers in a few of the state's congressional districts will receive something extra along with their February bills, but it won't be a rate hike announcement. The surprise will be a flyer asking customers to help the Citizens Utility Board defeat the company's request for a $139 million rate increase.

Claude Walker, spokesman for CUB, a private watchdog group for utility customers, said 650,000 of the brochures will be sent out in Illinois Power bills next month. The flyers feature a man being chased by a nuclear cooling tank up a graph depicting the increasing costs of the nuclear power plant the utility company is building at Clinton.

According to CUB, the rate increase the Illinois Commerce Commission is being asked to approve is only an attempt to pass on to consumers cost overruns from the construction of the Clinton plant.

"Originally, Clinton was to cost $429 million. It was to be completed by 1980," the flyer says. "Now, the cost is up to nearly $3.2 billion and the start-up date, after numerous delays, is anticipated to be 1986."

Walker said the brochure was designed to inform consumers of Illinois Power's attempt to increase its rates and to solicit contributions to fund CUB's challenge of the company's rate increase request. A final decision on the request will probably not be made by the ICC until June, he said.

Bob Gustafson, CUB representative from the 22nd Congressional District, said that none of the Illinois Power customers there will be getting a flyer, at least not in February.

Gustafson said that due to budget constraints CUB limited circulation to a few sample areas elsewhere in Illinois, to see what sort of response they are likely to receive if they are distributed throughout the state.

The construction costs of the Clinton plant are being felt by Illinois Power customers in Southern Illinois, Gustafson said, and they will be felt even stronger unless the company is denied its request to increase its rates.

The right to add brochures to utility bills four times a year was a special privilege granted to CUB when it was formed by the state legislature. The flyers must be approved by the ICC, but Walker said that so far every brochure CUB has submitted has been approved.

Meese unqualified

JUST WHEN IT APPEARS as if Edwin Meese III is about to clear the last hurdle in his quest for attorney general, something ugly turns up. Meese's first attempt — last spring — at surviving the Senate Confirmation Hearings intact failed when, led by the avenging Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, skeletons began appearing in Meese's closet.

The sordid details of Meese's many apparent improprieties, from sweet-heart loans to conflicts of interest, are many and complicated. But cynicism with other Reaganites and swell-hearted bankers is but the most superficial of reasons why Meese should not be confirmed as attorney general.

Meese's track record speaks for itself. Opposition to the Legal Services Corp., which provides for free legal counsel to those who cannot afford it; tacit support for segregation and a generally uncaring attitude toward the disenfranchised, should be reason enough to deny to Meese the job as the nation's highest law officer.

PERHAPS THE GREATEST REASONS for stopping Meese's confirmation come from Meese himself. "I don't know of any authoritative figures," Meese remarked in December 1983, "that there are hungry children." After being grilled for that callous and unfeeling remark, Meese conceded that there were indeed hungry children in this country.

But Meese's extraordinary ability to commit self-inflicted wounds — which in many ways resembles the charm of former Secretary of Interior James Watt — reveals not only a frightening detachment from the nation's social ills, but also a mentality that sees segregation as morally right and justice as something doled out to those wealthy enough to afford it.

But if indeed Meese can't cut it with the Senate Judiciary Committee it won't be because of his questionable views concerning justice, but rather because of a possible violation of federal law. Meese, apparently, made a boo-boo when he helped land "tax adviser" John McKean get a position on the board of governors of the U.S. Postal Service.

APPOINTING SOMEONE TO A federal position is one thing, but doing so after receiving some $60,000 in loans from the same person is quite another. It's called conflict of interest, and Meese is mired in it up to his waist.

Whether or not the Judiciary Committee determines that Meese in fact violated federal laws in arranging for a number of appointments to friends or not, there can be little question that Meese is clearly not qualified for the job.

The "sleeze factor" — a phrase first coined by then presidential candidate Walter Mondale — is not limited to cozy deals whereby Meese receives outrageous interest-free loans for government appointments. The "sleeze factor" runs far deeper.

It doesn't go too far to say that Meese's past actions and beliefs border on the amoral. It is abhorable that Meese should even be as close to confirmation as he is. Meese, as attorney general would inspire nothing but contempt and distrust.

The only reason Meese is still in the running for attorney general is that he's a close pal of President Reagan's. Replacing the ineffective William French Smith with Meese will do little to dispel the many doubts that have haunted that position since Reagan took office.

The Judiciary Committee has a moral responsibility to prevent Mr. Meese from reaching the office he so badly wants.

Dating Game is unfair

Where is it written that married students are dead? Who has done the survey to prove that we no longer have fantasies?

The recent ad in your newspaper for The Dating Game was clearly directed at my fellow students who are footloose and fancy-free. By entering the Dating Game contest they can win a chauffeured date, tickets to Shryock Auditorium and dinner at the Prime Time Restaurant.

I think this is wonderful. Further, I have no objections to SPC spending my money for such a worthwhile cause. My objection is that my wife and I cannot enter the contest! I guess we must be too old to date. Perhaps the younger students would object to married couples expressing love and having fun.

My suggestion is to have a comparable contest for married students. The SPC may find that our fantasies are similar to our single counterparts, except that we have the partner of our choice and do not wish to win another. — Dan DeFosse, Business Education, and Steven Kohn, graduate student, Computer Science.

Pay raises for legislators are OK, but tricky methods raise eyebrows

By David H. Everson, Joan Argella Parker and Jack R. Van Der Slik of the Illinois Legislative Studies Center, Sangamon State University

THE MAJOR Illinois political officeholders were granted a pay raise on Jan. 9, 1985, and thereby hangs a tale. The tale is rather disappointing.

The decision was made in the last couple of hours before the 83rd General Assembly adjourned and minutes before the newly elected General Assembly was sworn into office. Remember, however, that about four out of five legislators sworn into the new legislature were also members of the expiring one.

The statewide elected executives, from the governor downward, got substantial increases. The governor's salary will be increased from $58,000 to $85,000. A lot of money, but as Gov. Thompson noted recently, "This is a $16 billion, almost 100,000 employee corporation. If the state of Illinois were cast in corporate terms, we would be the 16th largest Fortune 500 corporation." Compared to corporate executives, the governor's salary will still be modest.

There were similar raises for judges and department directors. The range for directors, formerly $38,000 to $52,000, now becomes $45,000 to $65,000. The increases for the department officials were Thompson's highest priority. In recent years he has complained that low salaries were limiting the talent he could bring to state policymaking.

PROBABLY the most politically sensitive issue in the salary package was an increase for legislators: from $28,000 a year to $32,000 as of July 1, 1985. The last legislative increase was enacted in 1979.

Adding to the political sensitivity of the raises was the mechanism used to establish them. Previous legislation had established a citizen's Compensation Review Board to recommend salaries for executive, legislative and judicial officeholders. Those salaries would become law if both legislative chambers did not reject them by a majority of result. Officially the increases were already enacted before the House voted on them. But it gave legislators in the House an opportunity to grandstand by condemning them.

Rep. Judy Koehler (R-Henry) was prepared to move to reject the raises. Speaker Michael J. Madigan (D-Chicago) promised that debate and a record vote would take place. The Senate having already settled the matter, the House listened to Koehler argue against the raises as being procedurally improper. Madigan and Minority Leader Lee Daniels (R-Elmhurst) spoke for the salary increases. When the vote was taken, 76 representatives, more than two-thirds of the House, got on the record opposing the raises.

'There was a lot of hypocrisy in the voting...'

membership — 30 votes in the Senate and 60 in the House.

What happened on the morning of Jan. 9, before the adjournment, was good policymaking but bad politics. The good policy was that long delayed salary increases, a justified cost of good government, were enacted. As a Chicago Sun-Times editorial stated years ago, "Public service must be as honestly profitable as any other professional enterprise."

THE BAD politics occurred first in considering the salary increases in a lame duck assembly — in the period after the election, but before the expiration of the legislators' terms. Secondly, if a majority in either house could be prevented from rejecting the raises, they would go into effect. The rules thus allowed the legislators to back into the raises. And they did.

Twenty-nine senators voted to reject — one short of a majority. The failure to reject decided the matter and took the pressure off the House because any action in the House was irrelevant to the

THERE WAS a lot of hypocrisy in the voting in both chambers. Most members wanted the raises, including the fully justified increases in their own salaries. Only 23 senators and 31 representatives publicly voted in defense of the raises. The rest will correctly claim they did not vote for the increases, but they will get them anyway.

To their credit, the top leaders of both parties were on record favoring the increases. Senate President Rock (D-Oak Park), Speaker Madigan and House Minority Leader Daniels spoke openly and vigorously, calling upon their colleagues to confirm the pay board's report.

We support the salary increases and the idea of having a compensation board to develop a package covering top offices in all three branches. But the General Assembly should be required to keep faith with the people by confirming the increases by majorities in both houses. We saw a poor ending to a very productive 83rd General Assembly.

Kirkpatrick resigns, opts for private life

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.N. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick, ending the capital's long-running guessing game about her future, announced Wednesday she is quitting the administration after a sometimes stormy tenure and returning to teaching and writing.

Kirkpatrick revealed her plans after a private meeting with President Reagan. She refused to say whether she had been offered a new job in the administration. White House officials also declined to comment.

Asked if she was disappointed at not getting another top government post, Kirkpatrick said, "No. No, no, no, no, no."

"If I had wanted a top foreign policy job in the second term, I would have remained as U.S. permanent representative to the United Nations," said Kirkpatrick, one of three women in the administration with Cabinet rank.

Kirkpatrick, on leave from a teaching post at Georgetown University, said, "I am very committed to teaching and writing and the independence that goes with that. And it's the life I intend to return to."

The ambassador said she wrote the announcement of her resignation on the eve of her meeting with Reagan.

The president, who once lamented he did not have a job "worthy of her" outside the U.N., said last week he was ready to offer a suitable job outside the White House.

While the president refused to be more specific, sources who declined to be identified said it was the top post at the Agency for International Development or the United States Information Agency, or the task of revitalizing the moribund International Development Cooperation Agency.

Tuition and Fees Committee and is working on the ISA Research Task Force. He said the ISA would have to "use language the legislators understand — charts and graphs" to show the House and Senate that the amount of money awarded by the Illinois Grant and Loan Program needs looking into.

"They've grown out of the program," he said.

Glasser said there are "some bad trends" in the educational system in Illinois, that the allocations for the future of higher education is low. "Our goal is to have a free educational system, to make education accessible in the public system," she said.

The group plans to meet at Midwest Regional Lobby Day Feb. 9 on the University of Illinois-Chicago campus. It also plans to attend the United States Student Association Conference Lobby Day March 15 to 18 in Washington, D.C., and lobby Congress to keep a lid on the costs of higher education on the last day of the conference.

"Students can do something about their education and the (amount of the) check they receive from financial aid," Glasser said.

U.S. news is ethnocentric, Swiss grad student says

By Justus Weathersby
Staff Writer

The SIU-C School of Journalism has enrolled international students from various countries, but rarely from Europe.

Patrick Fischer, a journalist from Switzerland, is one of the few.

Fischer has begun his second semester in the master's program.

He chose to study abroad because "journalism education is very young in our country," he said.

"And American journalism is famous for having a free press."

Anglo-Saxon, British and American journalism patterns are followed in his country's news services, he said.

"I've noticed that American news is much more ethnocentric," Fischer said. He said local newspapers are less observant of world affairs than the European press.

"The front page of my newspaper (The Impartial) is covered with international news," he said.

Pointing to his stomach, Fischer said the American press "doesn't consider itself as a navel within the world but as the whole world," he said.

Most of the students that he has talked with "aren't concerned about international affairs," he said.

"When Indira Gandhi was assassinated, a student said to me, 'as long as they don't threaten us, we don't care.'"

Fischer said he first heard of SIU-C after the Rotary International Scholarship Program selected him.

"I arrived here with a scholarship from the Rotary Scholarship Program in Evanston, but had never heard of Carbondale before," Fischer said.

Switzerland, which is about twice the size of New Jersey, has a population of 6.5 million and is a militarily neutral country cradled in the heart of Europe.

He considers being here an experience that is rooted in the culture of "deep America."

"Social relationships don't go much farther than 'Hi, how are you doing?'" he said.

"I'm trying to get used to campus life," Fischer said.

"Students here seem to seclude and constrain themselves to campus. In my country, our campus gives us much more of a feeling that we belong to the real world," he said.

Fischer said people here are more materialistic and that an American self-centered attitude seems to be supported by Reaganomic policies that focus on reducing personal income taxes, and similar programs.

"I'm surprised at how important salaries are to students. Big bucks seem to be the reason they choose professional endeavors," Fischer said.

Fischer said the two countries differ politically.

"Politics isn't as spectacular in my country. In fact it's almost boring. There is much less show business," he said.

"The American media coverage of the national elections is a political advantage that we don't have in our TV networks."

Fischer said, "Some places of our country are still backwards. For example we adopted a law that gave women the right to vote almost 50 years after a similar law was passed in the United States."

"I'm not saying that our society is any better than yours. Our system is suited for us and your system is suited for you."

Scholarship funds sought for teen parents program

By Cathy Brown
Staff Writer

About 45 people gathered Tuesday night at a dinner in the SIU-C Student Center to raise funds for scholarships for participants in Parents-Too-Soon, a Cairo-based program that provides services to teen mothers.

Cleora Bradford, site coordinator of the local PTS program, said that while the existing program has been successful in helping young mothers cope with the stresses of motherhood, a scholarship program would help them "make a permanent positive change in their lives."

PTS is sponsored by United Front Inc., an organization that provides a variety of social programs. PTS is funded by the Department of Child and Family Services.

Portia Kennel, regional coordinator of PTS, said "We need to focus more on not just providing services." Teens need to be motivated to get an education, she said, so "they can become economically independent and can be a vital part of this society."

Several of the girls at Tuesday's dinner said they would like to further their education. Father George Clements, president of One Church, One Child, a black adoption program encouraged them to do this.

He told them to escape the "slavery that exists when we are enslaved by ignorance. If you have a program to help you escape the chains of ignorance, for God's sake, take advantage of it."

The scholarship program is in its beginning stages and Bradford said "Right now, we just really don't know," where money for the program will come from.

She expects some funds will come from fundraising events like the one Tuesday and from private contributions. She said Tuesday's dinner netted about $500.

PTS groups provide emotional support to young mothers ages 13-21 in Cairo, Sandusky and Mounds. These long-term support groups are run by experienced mothers who are given some basic training in working with a group.

Cleora Bradford, site coordinator of the Parents-Too-Soon program, spoke in the Student Center Tuesday night.

The hope is that these experienced mothers who "have gone through the very same experiences and have done something meaningful with their lives can have some impact on the girls," Bradford said.

About 15 girls participate in each group. They learn about such things as child care, nutrition, sex education, assertiveness and feeling good about themselves, she said.

Transportation, child care and a small meal are provided at the meetings.

They also participate in group discussion where they talk about their problems with each other and brainstorm to try to find solutions. Some common problems are dealing with the stress of caring for a child, dealing with boyfriends and trying to have a social life.

Bradford said being a teen mother "immediately creates a dilemma," because "they're trying to maintain a part of adolescence," and become a responsible adult at the same time.

Several girls from the groups said that PTS had helped them become more self-confident and had helped them deal with stress.

Faculty and student readings slated

U.S. wants to defend Alpine skiing prestige

BORMIO, Italy (AP) — The United States, the No.1 nation in Alpine skiing at Sarajevo, has named a widely rejuvenated team to defend its prestige at the World Championships, which open Thursday.

The Americans took three out of six Olympic golds a year ago, killing the pride of traditional powers such as Austria and Switzerland.

"This year we've had to start almost from scratch, but I am confident these youngsters will do well here," said Harald Schoenhaar, the West German-born director of the American Alpine team. The results will probably not match those in Sarajevo, but our team will not be wiped out."

The best American hopes appeared to be Bill Johnson, the men's Olympic downhill champion, and Tamara McKinney, the 1983 World Cup champion.

"We haven't done so well so far in the season, but this could be expected after all the excitement from the Olympic golds," Schoenhaar said. "Our top stars have had a late start, but they have planned their training on the World Championships."

Johnson, 24, of Van Nuys, Calif., was 19th in the downhill trials Wednesday. His time of 2:10.72 was 4.39 seconds off the fastest of the day, a 2:06.33 by Peter Mueller of Switzerland.

Johnson said, however, he concentrated on studying the track more than on speed.

Another American, Doug Lewis, 21, of Salisbury, Vt., did well in Wednesday's downhill trials. His 2:09.17 was ninth fastest time.

"I see Johnson in the top five and Doug Lewis in the top 10 for the downhill," Schoenhaar said. "But for the men's slalom and giant slalom anything in the top 10 would be a real surprise. We have to rebuild a new team without the Mahres."

The Mahre twins, Phil and Steve, who for years were the leading American skiers, retired after Sarajevo.

Phil, a triple World Cup king from 1981 to 1983, won the Sarajevo special slalom and Steve was second.

Another U.S. winner at Sarajevo, Debbie Armstrong, was here for the Championships. The 21-year-old star from Seattle captured the giant slalom gold at the Olympics.

"Debbie and Tamara can hope for a medal in the slalom and giant slalom," Schoenhaar predicted. "But I am also confident in Eva Twardokens and Diann Roffe."

"They have the potential to do well. I've told them they have no pressure, they've got to treat it like a normal race, and they have to keep relaxed as possible."

Andujar, Herr agree to terms

ST. LOUIS (AP) — With two veteran players who had filed for arbitration apparently in the fold, St. Louis Cardinals officials focused their efforts Wednesday on a possible six-player swap with the San Francisco Giants, a Cardinals' spokesman said.

Kip Ingle of the National League team's public relations staff said pitcher Joaquin Andujar and second baseman Tom Herr had agreed in principle to new contracts with the club.

That left outfielder-first baseman David Green as the lone Cardinal scheduled to take part in arbitration hearings that start Friday, Ingle said. But Green, pitcher

Dave LaPoint, infielder Jose Gonzalez and first baseman Gary Rajsich may be headed for San Francisco in exchange for outfielder Jack Clark.

St. Louis newspapers reported the deal as imminent over the weekend. The Cardinals, though, insisted on an examination of the knee Clark injured last season.

GCAC: Crucial games await cagers

Junior forward Jeanette Tendai leads the Bears like Petra Jackson leads the Salukis. Tendai moved just ahead of Jackson for second in GCAC scoring stats with a 19.6 points per game average, compared to Jackson's 19.2 ppg.

"Tendai is one of the best players in the conference and she can hurt you bad," Scott said.

If a team's defense pays too much attention to Tendai, the Bears can counter with senior forward Cindy Hauter.

Scott said, "Hauter is a very strong physical ballplayer."

Sharon Zeilmann, the Bears' 6-4 junior center, may also give the Salukis some problems.

"We don't have anyone that can match up to her height. She's not the calibre of Regina Street (Memphis State), but if we're not playing our defense well she can hurt us," Scott said.

Southwest Missouri Coach Valerie Goodwin said Zeilmann is playing well offensively, but could be an even bigger factor on defense with her long arms and size advantage.

"She does a good job defensively and it's going to be imperative for her to play well. I can see her playing a big role Thursday night," Goodwin said.

Goodwin's overall philosophy and pride lies in her ability to coach defense and improvement has been her major goal this season.

"SIU's a very good shooting team. We have to play one of our better defensive efforts this season against Southern," Goodwin said. "I say that because all year our defense has been the key to our successes or losses."

"With the nationally ranked field goal percentage the Salukis show now, and anytime a team's field goal percentage is that high, defense is, of course, important."

The area where some teams have hurt SIU-C lies at half court, keeping the Salukis' hot shooters away from the basket with the trap.

"The word did get around that some full or half court pressure works against Southern. I think they expect that," Goodwin said.

'Female Jordan' one of state's top scorers

CHICAGO (AP) — Basketball fans are calling high school basketball star Lena Taylor the female Michael Jordan, but perhaps they should be calling Jordan the male Lena Taylor.

That's because Taylor, of Chicago Collins High School, is averaging 31.7 points per game this season while Jordan, of the Chicago Bulls, is hitting 27 points per game in his first National Basketball Association season.

Jordan led the University of North Carolina to the NCAA championship and 1982 and was a key member on the U.S. Olympic men's basketball team that won the gold medal last year in Los Angeles. Similar accomplishments may lie ahead for Taylor, the top girls' scorer in Chicago.

The 5-foot-6 Taylor ranks third in the state in scoring, according to statistics compiled and released Thursday by The Associated Press.

Saundra Cermak of Wauconda and Cathy Snipes of Alton High School are tied for the lead, both averaging 36 points per game. Nora Lewis of Peoria Richwoods High School is fourth with 29.4 points.

Taylor was first compared to Jordan by the public address announcer at Marshall High School this season, and others quickly picked up on the compliment.

"She's the best all-around college prospect in the state," said Luther South Coach Don Holt. "She has a real intelligence for the game."

Holt coached Taylor last summer at the Brainard Park tournament, where she was the most valuable player.

But for Taylor, life hasn't been as easy as basketball.

She and her six brothers were raised in a public housing project, which has hurt her development.

"The projects got me sidetracked," she said. "It was a wild atmosphere. I was starting to hang out with the wrong people. They were starting to smoke and stuff."

Her grade point average dropped to 1.6 on a 4.0 scale. But she's turned her life around and is taking an extra class load to raise her average to 2.0 to qualify for college scholarships.

Several major colleges have expressed an interest in Taylor, although she will not decide where she will continue her academic and basketball career until after the season ends.

"I guess I just lost interest in studying," she said. "But I'll pull it off."

The family has since moved out of the projects, and the situation at home is improving, Taylor said.

The stabilizing force for Taylor during the roughest times has been Collins Coach Cynthia McAlpin, who is teaching her star the value of discipline.

"She knows my ways," said Taylor. "The last time I overslept she called me up, cussed me out and said something about me not living the next day if I wasn't at practice in five minutes."

CAGERS: Set to challenge ISU

Anderson (2.9 points per game).

"What has helped this team is that a variety of players are capable of contributing," Smith said. "Our four seniors have provided the leadership this year."

Eight of the 11 Redbird players are shooting 50 percent or better from the field for Illinois State, which ranks second in the MVC in field goal percentage at .524. The Redbirds, along with Creighton, also lead the MVC in defensive field goal percentage at .446.

The Redbirds are looking to sweep the two-game series against SIU-C. They defeated the Salukis Jan. 9 in Normal 78-63, behind a career-high 22 points by Braksick.

Smith said the Redbirds have to stop SIU-C's perimeter scoring and contain 6-foot-6 forward Cleveland Bibbens and 6-foot-11 center Kenny Perry.

Meanwhile, SIU-C coach Allen Van Winkle hopes his team can get back on the winning track against Illinois State. Last year the Salukis upset the then 17th-ranked Redbirds at the Arena, 105-98.

Van Winkle said despite his team's 1-6 record in the MVC, the Salukis have played well in conference games this year with the exception of their loss to Illinois State.

"I think two things happened at Illinois State, we played poorly and Braksick had a great game. So we need to do a better job, and yet in saying that I have compliment Illinois State because they have a good team."

Van Winkle said he'll likely go with his normal starting lineup against Illinois State, which consists of Nate Bufford (13.9 points per game) and Roy Birch (10.9 points per game) at the guards, Bibbens (14.6 points per game) and Bernard Campbell (13.2 points per game) at the forwards, and Perry (12.0 points per game) at center.

After 18 games last year, the Salukis were 5-2 in the MVC and 13-5 overall.

Men cagers to challenge Illinois State

Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

In some ways, the Illinois State and SIU-C men's basketball teams are alike. Both teams have balanced scoring attacks and have relied on leadership from its senior players.

But the main difference between the two teams is that the Redbirds have been able to win close games, while the Salukis haven't.

Illinois State has posted a 4-1 record in overtime games this season and has won four games by six points or less in regulation.

The Redbirds were involved in four consecutive overtime games before defeating Bradley Saturday, 65-55. Before the Bradley game, they posted overtime victories over Wichita State (86-80), Chicago State (79-66), and Indiana State (85-83), and lost to Tulsa in overtime (79-69).

Winning close games has paid off for Illinois State, which is in third place in the Missouri Valley Conference at 5-2 and 15-3 overall.

On the other hand the Salukis have lost six games by six points or less this season and have struggled to a 1-6 record in the MVC and to 9-9 overall.

The Salukis hope to snap their two-game losing streak Thursday night against the Redbirds at the Arena. Tip-off is 7:35 p.m.

"We've been able to win some close ballgames this year and that is a credit to our team," said Illinois State assistant coach Terry Smith. "We're not as physical as last year but we've found ways to make up for the difference."

The Redbirds attack is paced by 6-foot-8, 220-pound senior forward Lou Stefanovic, who leads the team in scoring (18.4 points per game) and rebounding (7.0), and is second in field goal percentage (.575).

Other probable starters for the Redbirds include 6-foot-1 senior Michael McKenny (9.8 points per game) and 6-foot-4 senior Brad Duncan (10.6 points per game) at the guards, 6-foot-5 senior Rickie Johnson (14.4 points per game) at the other forward and 7-foot sophomore Bill Braksick (7.9 points per game) at center.

The Redbirds can use a variety of players off the bench, such as center-forward Derrick Sanders (4.4 points per game), forwards Tony

Holifield (2.9 points per game) and Matt Taphorn (0.5 points per game), and guard William

Women cagers set for crucial GCAG games

By Anita J. Stoner
Staff Writer

The SIU-C women's basketball team can tighten the Gateway Conference standings this week if it can manage two road victories.

The Salukis travel first to Springfield, Mo. to face the Southwest Missouri Bears

Thursday at 7:30 p.m., then on to Wichita, Ks. for a Saturday night game against the Wichita State Shockers.

"I think these are two very crucial and very difficult games. Anytime you go on the road and play teams the calibre of Southwest Missouri and Wichita, you're in for a tough time," Saluki Coach Cindy Scott said.

Both teams are similar Scott said, and although their records are not outstanding, these teams are capable of playing with anyone in the conference for a win.

"We're going to have to be prepared and hope we can do the things we've done well enough in those games we've been fortunate enough to win," Scott said.

Southwest Missouri has never beaten SIU-C in six years of league play. The Bears returned four starters to this season's squad which stands fifth in the GCAC at 4-3, 7-10 overall.

"They've got a pretty experienced ball club, they've got the tools, and they are certainly capable of beating us. Our game is going to have to be on to beat them," Scott said.

It won't be easy to match last year's record-breaking season, but Saluki gymnast Michelle Spillman is up for the challenge.

As a freshman, Spillman rewrote the SIU-C record book four times, including an all-around score of 38.20. The previous all-around high score was in 1973 when Terry Spencer scored a 37.35 for the Salukis in the Midwest Regionals.

Spillman also set school records in the vault (9.65), uneven parallel bars (9.75) and the floor exercise (9.80) in her first year of collegiate competition, and helped the Salukis finish second at the Central Regionals.

"I didn't come here with any goals for last year. What happened just happened," Spillman said.

WHAT SPILLMAN did was to lead the Salukis to a 15-12 record, finishing first or second in the all-around in eight meets and captured first at the Central Regionals in the vault with her school-record score of 9.65. She placed fifth in the all-around with a 35.85.

"My vault at the regionals last year was my best ever. It was a highlight to win there," Spillman said.

She failed to qualify for the nationals as one of the ten at-large bids by just 0.10 points last April. Spillman's qualifying average of 36.4125 ranked 12th in the country, with Oregon State's Laurie Carter (36.5125) receiving the final bid.

SPILLMAN, A NATIVE of Montclair, N.J., hopes to improve on all four events this season and play a key role in helping the Salukis achieve their goal of a first-place finish at the Central Regionals, something coach Herb Vogel's squad accomplished two years ago.

"I hope to do better than last year and this year's team has better talent, and better attitudes. Everyone has more confidence and they're all working harder. But we still have a lot of hard work ahead of us," Spillman said.

"Michelle's basic advantages are that she's coachable, dependable and she competes well. She knows what has to be done and she makes the sacrifices: to see that it's done," Vogel said.

SPILLMAN HAS all-around scores of 35.45 and 35.80 in SIU-C's first two meets this season, despite illnesses that have affected her practice time. Her score of 35.80 is currently ranked eighth in the region. She won the floor exercise with a 9.50 as the Salukis won their home-opener over NIU and scored a 9.40 on the uneven bars at Southeast Missouri State last Friday.

"She's (Spillman) capable of going 37 on any given day and I see her improving each year. Improving her average score is the most important aspect right now," Vogel said.

One of Spillman's strongest events is the floor exercise and her strong tumbling abilities give her an advantage over other gymnasts. In October of 1983 she placed third in straight tumbling and fifth overall for the U.S. team at the World Cup of Sports Acrobatics.

SPILLMAN FINISHED first in the floor exercise seven times last season for SIU-C and her performance last week against NIU marked the seventh time that she has scored 9.50 or better in that event.
